

ABSTRACT

Processes for the preparation of compounds having a chiral carbon substituted with an amine are disclosed. The processes include admixing a ketone with an amine in the presence of a catalyst having a chiral phosphine ligand and an acid. The admixture can also contain a reducing additive. The admixture is then exposed to hydrogen to directly and asymmetrically aminate the ketone.